More Scaly Adventures

As we ring in the new year, Expedition Reptile LLC is buzzing with anticipation of a new year filled with sheds, shows, and scaly snuggles!

Another Year OLDER!

Our owner Jodi, is celebrating a birthday this month.

Yes, she's officially too old to blame the gray hair on "stress"

BIG EXCITEMENT First Responders are booking us!

Our local heroes are booking for our "Preparing Heroes: Reptile Handling Workshop"!

Can't wait to geek out over our iguana handling techniques, boa transport safety tips, and how NOT to get bit by a python!

Stay tuned for pics of our heroes holding reptiles!

We're honored they have chosen us!

Reptile Bulletin

Our chunky Argentine Tegu, Harley, has officially clocked out for her annual winter snoozefest aka brumation! (shhh she's sleeping)

Our reptile room got a makeover!

Our scaly overlords are living their best life: perfect temps, humidity on autopilot, and zero complaints. (except from the rat snake, Frosty, who STILL thinks he's a rattle snake!).

Reptile Bulletin Continued ...

We've got a new crew member:

Meet Cookie, our fresh juvenile Russian Tortoise

who's already 90% attitude in a tiny shell!

Now at shows we can roll out wise old Nelly alongside this spunky young dude and let the size-&-personality differences do the talking (while Cookie probably tries to steal the spotlight anyway).

Meet our newest superstar... Cocoa!

We're officially adding a true Red Tail Boa to the Expedition Reptile crew! She's basically Cuddles' twin, just with better fashion sense (that classic red-tail glow-up) and the same "please pet me forever" personality. We can't wait to unleash this friendly chocolate colored ambassador on the world. Get ready for maximum hugs and zero judgment.

Meet our new heavyweight champ... Treecko!

The New Caledonian giant gecko, the actual largest living gecko species on Earth! This beefy island legend hails from most of New Caledonia. (Let's be real: why settle for a tiny starter when you can roll with the final evolution straight out of the egg?)
